St. Bridget's Appuni Picute. On Thursday, twentieth instant, all with St. Bridget's will parade from the church to James's park. It is said that more than four societies will turn out on that day. It is well known St. Bridget's picnic has always been the largest and most popular of the season. Indeed, we never knew St. Bridget's to fail in any indertaking. Hard as the times may appear to be, we guarantee St. Bridget's favorite picnic will be a success, not only in financial report, but even in vast and magnificent display. Three bands are engaged already. Thousands will be sure to visit the park, as the twentieth has been proclaimed a general holiday

by the governor of the State.

-The Italian picuic is the order of the The Parade of the Colored Sanday se to-day. Yesterday was a glorious occasion for he colored people of Memphis, it being the annual celebration of their Sundayschools. Pursuant to agreement large numbers of the colored population began | street. to assemble in and about Court square at an early hour in the morning, the ountenance of each one expressing in a doubtful manner the cager expectson and interest for the grand procesion, which was formed into line about leven o'clock and marched down Main treet to Beale, and thence to the Exposition building, where the festivities were continued until quite a late hour last night. The procession was one of the largest of its kind ever seen upon the streets of this city, composed, as it was, of twenty or more Sunday-schools, each heim, was rejected. of which was represented by a queen and maids of honor. The queen of the day was mounted upon a handsome ornamental car, the seats of which were arranged in pyramidal order, the top one being the royal throne, tastefully rowned with a beautiful canopy. The seats in and below the throne were occupied by children, there being at least forty in the group. The colored people manifested much interest and great pride in the display, Main street, from Madison to Adims, being densely packed with spectators. In fact, the crowd was so thick in front of Court square that it was difficult for pedestrians to move, and no litwhose business caused them to pass along The dead dog, which has been lying or three days on St. Martin street, bequite creditable, and was conducted in a adicious manner by the different members of the committee.

The Italian Picnic To-Day. To-day the Societa di Unione e Fratellanza Italiana will give its sixth annual picnic at James's park. Extensive preparations have been made for the succ ful management of this picnic, which will in no respect be inferior to any of the previous ones given by the abovenamed society. We have no doubt but what the entertainment will attract a very large attendance. Much interest being manifested by the public, and indications are that James's park this afternoon and to-night will be one grand scene of pleasure and enjoyment. This morning the society, with its officers and queens, will move in grand procession down Main street. Knights of Pythias Piente Yesterday the Knights of Pythias paraded on Second, Beale, Main and other streets, because of that day being the one for their second annual Memphis pienie at James's park. Although the turnout was small, yet the display was very attractive. The Knights are quite proficient in the drill, and their easy, steady, and precise movements attracted general attention and elicited many praiseworthy, yet deserved compliment. We regret that the turnout was not larger, for the three different lodges in this city number between two hundred and fifty, and three hundred members, who embrace many of the leading and best representative men of the city. The order is young, active and vigorous, and has within it every element necessary for future growth and successful development. The principles that underlie, and the beautiful lessons that instruct, guide and ornament the knighthood are too pure, truthful and glorious ever to be dwarfed or crowdtheir expansive utility. No order in America has a grander outlook, a more promising future of usefulness, goodness and charity, than has this. The entertainment at James's park was largely attended in the afternoon; in every respect it was elegant, agreeable, and free from anything obnoxious to the feelings of the refined and respected ladies and gentlemen who were present and indulged in the delightful enjoyment so generously offered, and so gracefully conducted by the excellent and worthy gentlemen of the different committees. Councilman Ryan said that he was nance, but had no intimation of this ordinance being proposed. He had always been ready to discharge his duty, and inasmuch as the committee had before its consideration an ordinance upon this subject, it seemed that it was an innuendo as to their dereliction. He then went into an explanation of the ubject. The ordinance had remained n the bands of the committee to await what action could be done in regard to the reduction of salaries of officers who were elected, as this had been deemed unlawful previous to the passage of the new charter. This ordinance was not drawn up by the finance committee as a body. One of the other ordinances was prepared before the passage of the new harter, and the other since. Neither covered the whole ground; this one did. The ordinance was amended so as to allow the president of the board of health $50, the secretary $100 and the Distinguished Suests Present-Speech by the President and Responses of the Guests-Irish, English and French Spoken.

In response to a call which appeared in our columns several days ago, the members of the Societe Française de Secours Mutuelle, or French benevo-lent association, met at John Gaston's, vesterday evening to celebrate by a banuet the anniversary of the foundation of their society. The table was laid with fifty covers, and in Gaston's most artistic style, the garnishments being salads with J. H. Gray for property condemned and other chefs d'oeuvres in which our great maitre de cuisine is not second to The engineer was Instructed to build any in the United States, not even Del-

> Promptly at three o'clock the assembled guests took their seats, the head of the table being occupied by President Pellegrin. At his right was Mayor Loague, and on his left Dr. James, formerly of the APPEAL, now of Osceola. Arkansas. Among the other guests were Chief Athy, A.B. Vaccaro, and Sheriff Ozanne. of Panola county, Mississippi. The first orator in course was Mr. Batier, a wellknown druggist of our city, who delivered in French an oration of which the following is a brief resume, and which was received with great enthusiasm: GENTLEMEN AND COMPATRIOTS-I wish that I had the gift of eloquence, in which I feel in enjoying this anniversa-ry of the foundation of our society. It is to be hoped that this banquet, which is the first offered to its members and its few invited friends, will serve to bring it into prominence and give it a new life. Distant and remote as we are from our dear country, and only having to recall us to its memory those colors so well beloved, our object ought to be to ommissioners passed second reading.

Our aims ought | will promptly respond to this call. to tend to the prosperity and advancement of our society, and to unite, so far as it is possible for us to do so, in its osom all of the French who reside here in Memphis. Let us be a little less ready to search out, and a little less ingenious in discovering the faults of others, and a little more ready to render homage to those good qualities which they possess. May our discussions in our society henceforth proceed from a desire and a firm determination to understand each other. I sincerely hope that this banquet may serve to unite us more closely, and that the anniversary of this date, May 18,1875, may be engraved upon our hearts as the foundation and commencement of our success. However few in numbers we may be in Memphis, we are sufficient to make a respectable figure, and nobody can contest the fact that we now have a ociety well united and organized. Let us, then, group ourselves around the flag of our beautiful and beloved France, which here hangs a silent witness of her glories and her misfortunes. Its beauteous colors recall to us the hours of our childhood, the village bells, the smiling and fertile fields, the relations and irlends which we left behind us, and from whose destinies Providence, in its inscrutable de signs, has separated us. Let us not forget to recognize a beneficent heaven, which, in dividing us from our loved ones, and our own beautiful country, has reunited, under the flag of a sister republic, noble and friendly to us, the flag of the United States of America. Let us respect and love the flag equally with our own tri-color, as the emblem of our adopted country, and make it our rule to serve, as far as in us lies, the happiness and best interests of both countries Great applause. At the close of Mr. Batier's remarks the toast of "France" was drunk by all, standing and in silence. The champagne circulated merrily and in rapid succes sion. Speeches and toasts were elicited from Messrs, De Lisle, La Vigne, Mayor Loague, Chief Athy and others. Mayor Loague, not being able to speak French, addressed the assemblage in American and Irish. His quotation from the death song of Brian Borolmhe: "Ratherskin na boklish draw tears from almost everybody who heard him. Chief Athy followed, also in a few well chosen native and foreign phrases, the effect of which was tremer Fah-a-ballagh being re-schoed till the very ceilings rang. Then, and before the echoes died away, came in Colonel Kellar, of the Avalanche. 'The sharp eyes of the president espied him, and he was immediately called on for a speech and a toast, The Colonel, advancing midway of the table, said: "Mr. President, will you show me the man who called on me to make a speech?" Pellegrin answered, "It was I, the president of the scriety, colonel!" "Ah!" rejoined the colonel, "if it had been anybody else I would have challenged him to the combat a l'outrance " In a most happy vein he then continued, and while wishing Societe Francaise health, wealth and happiness, he reminded them that they were Americans as well as Frenchmen, and plead with them to make the glory and honor of their adopted country as dear to them as that of France. His remarks were interrupted by repeated cheers and applause, and when he sat down his health was proposed and drank in a bumper by all present After Colonel Kellar came Mr. A. Vaccaro, one of our oldest and best citizens, an Italian, but one who loves France. He spoke in French, "excellently well," and was applieded enthusiastically. Joe Barbiere, "Our Joe," was next called on and also made a few excellent and apropos remarks. Dr. James being called upon responded briefly, and in his old character as a "newspaper man said he was better at discussing a good dinner than making speeches. He reminded his hearers of the old monkish

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE. Question and Answer

EDITORS APPEAL-Will you please inform two old Memphians which of the following is correct: Suppose you are walking on the right hand side of a lady on the left side of the street, and you cross over, should you change side on continuing the way you started? I contend that you should always give the lady the inside of the pavement. By answering, you will greatly oblige us, as we preferred your decision to any literary paper. BRINKLEY, ARK., May 17. In answer to our correspondent, we have to say that a gentleman should always keep the lady on his left, no matter how often he crosses or turns upon the street, thus retaining perfect and easy control of his right arm and hand for any emergency or accident. not the correct thing to change positions in the street any more than in the
